FARMERS HERE MAKE USE OF ACP

By
W. D. Hix, III
Appomattox County ASC Committee
Chairman

The Agricultural Conservation Program is not a subsidy, handout, rural relief, or income supplement program, but it is an incentive program to get more conservation on individual farms needed in the public interest than would be possible if farmers were to depend entirely on their own resources.

It is a cost-sharing program in which farmers as participants pay a substantial part of the cost of the practices in money, their labor, use of their own farm machinery, or in materials. It is a democratic program in which most of the planning and operation is in the hands of farmers, administered by county and community committeemen, all farmers elected by their neighbors.

It is teamwork operation between agencies of the Department of Agriculture, State and local governments, and other citizens. It is a necessary means for helping farmers to establish systems of conservation farming that put into effect better soil and water management, and use.

Recognizing the need for the protection of our land and water resources for the production of sufficient food and raw materials to meet future needs of the nation, Congress appropriates funds to share with farmers the cost of carrying out needed soil and water conservation measures.

Farmers Here Participate

What are Appomattox County farmers doing about their responsibility in conserving our soils?

Let's take a look at the records for the past year, as compiled by the county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Office.

During the year of 1958, conservation - conscious farmers of Appomattox County, 173 of them, spent more than $68,000.00 to put ter on their farms.

The Federal Government through the Agricultural Conservation Program paid back to them on a share-the-cost basis $34,000.00 of this.

Seventy-five per cent of the funds allocated to Appomattox County were earned by farmers in carrying out pasture practices which included establishing permanent vegetative cover for soil protection or as a needed land-use adjustment; improvement of an established vegetative cover for soil or watershed protection and liming farmland to permit the use of legumes and grasses for soil improvement and protection.

The other twenty-five per cent was used in soil and water conserving practices such as constructing grassland ponds as a means of protecting vegetative cover, drainage practices and forestry practices.

With ACP assistance, 511 acres of new pastures were established by the use of recommended seedlings of grasses and legumes, 768 tons of lime and 205 tons of fertilizer.

About 808 acres of old pastures were improved by the use of 568 tons of lime and 276 tons of fertilizer; 380 acres of farmland were treated with lime alone; 200 acres of establishing and improving forestry stands were carried out.

These statistics do not mean that every farm in Appomattox County carried out conservation practices last year, but 169 farms did share in the county allocation and took seriously their responsibilities for helping to conserve our soil and water resources.

Crunchy Salmon Loaf

A new meatless treat with a rich crunchy texture offers a delicious low-cost way to stretch the food budget. It's "Crunchy Salmon Loaf," made with crushed sound buttery crackers, canned salmon and tasty seasonings. A single one-pound can of salmon is enough for four generous family-style servings. The crushed crackers add both good texture and nourishing quantity to this new main dish. Make it this easy way:

Crunchy Salmon Loaf

1 1-lb. can salmon, undrained
2 cups finely crushed Hi Ho Cracker crumbs
1 cup minced celery
2 tablespoons minced onion
2 eggs, beaten
½ cup milk
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon prepared mustard

Heat oven to 375°F. (moderately hot oven). Combine all ingredients In a large bowl, mixing well. Turn mixture into a greased 1-quart fish mold (or a 9-inch by 5-inch loaf pan). Bake at 375°F. for 40 minutes. Unmold on to heated serving platter, and sprinkle with additional crumbs. If fish mold is used, arrange two halved crackers to form "tail," and two slices of stuffed olive for "eyes." Garnish with parsley sprigs. Serve with chili sauce, if desired.

VISITORS FROM SOUTH AFRICA ENJOY STAY IN "FRIENDLY" TOWN OF APPOMATTOX

Above: Orville Carrell, of the Park Service, Mrs. Alec Papageorge, Daneel leRoux, Mr. Papageorge. See story below:

Editor's note: Mr. and Mrs. Alec C. Papageorge, of Pretoria, Transvaal, Union of South Africa, are in this country, Mr. Papageorge being a reporter and writer for the daily Pretoria News. After arriving in New York, they have visited Gettysburg, Washington, etc. and this week came to Appomattox. By coincidence they met Mr. Daneel le Roux, local teacher, who happens to be from the same city: Pretoria. Mr. and Mrs. Papageorge are spending the week here, and your editor asked him to do a guest article for us. The fellowing is the result:)

By

Alec C. Papageorge

Yesterday afternoon while I was strolling along one of your Appomattox Streets, a total stranger waved a cheery greeting from a passing car. You natives of Appomattox may not regard this as anything special, but I would like to make use of it as a typical illustration of the warm, open-hearted friendliness that seems to be stock-in-trade here in the U. S.

You may not agree with me. You may not have identified that quality in yourselves—more than one American I have met has re-acted incredulously at the news that I consider you an uncommonly generous and cordial people. However, let me assure you that in your day-to-day actions you reveal every evidence of an inborn affability, and this soon strikes the visitor. Moreover, unlike some of your State laws that apply in one particular area only, this character trait seems to pervade the whole country — at least, what I have seen of it.

Since landing in New York six weeks ago, my wife and I have passed through seven states — naturally Virginia is one of the prettiest —and nowhere has there been a trace of unfriendliness or even coolness among the people we have met. Your hospitality has been quite remarkable, at times overwhelming.

If you knew South Africa well, this would sound strange talk from a South African. Our people have themselves a reputation for warmheartedness and sociability, as your South African teacher here, Mr. Le Roux, will confirm.

After all, we went through much the same pioneering stage as you did, and it was among our forebears that our traditional concept of friendship and good neighbourliness was born. In those days, when distance and isolation were such overriding factors, settlers in the remoter outposts welcomed the occasional traveler with open arms .He was the bearer of news, and was lavishly entertained while he held the family enthralled at the open hearth with tales about the big city and nearby settlements.

Many of our people in South Africa retain the gregarious instincts of the pioneer, but in the cities it is not so well defined. It seems that when our people come together in thousands, they have less time to bother about the next man—who he is, and what his troubles are.

Somehow, you Americans have succeeded in retaining this trait, even in big cities like New York and Washington. The outsider is conscious of it, and perhaps the visiting American from another State would notice it too, only less acutely.

From what I have seen of Appomattox and a few other small towns (I hope I am not treading on any toes by calling your town "small," but I gather some of the old folks prefer to think of it that way) this so-called fellow-feeling I am trying to analyse is quite marked in the country. Despite the automobile, the aeroplane, T. V. and other distance shrinking devices, you seem still to have time to inquire from the next man what he is about, and to wave a greeting from a car. Some people call it small - town smoopiness, but I call it acting like a human being.

I hope the town of Appomattox will long retain this precious quality. Too often it is sacrificed to progress and development. The individual loses his identity as Mr. Smith or Mr. Jones. He is either the atom physicist, the research analyst, the big businessman, or something else in the vast hotchpotch of men and nations trying to get ahead of each other.

Although I will only be here a week, it has been a real pleasure to become acquainted with your town, which lured me a long way by way of life, your stately oaks, and your sweet-smelling honeysuckles.

NEWS REPORT FROM TOWN MAYOR

To the Citizens of
The Town of Appomattox:

You fine people are to be commended again for the fine spirit that you are continuing to show toward both our Clean-Up and Paint-Up programs.

On Saturday, May 30, the Lions Club and the Jaycees are sponsoring a Horse Show, which I certainly hope that all of you good people will support. It will start Saturday morning at 10:00 A. M., with a parade, and will be followed with two performances at the Ball Park. Both the Lions Club and the Jaycee members have put forth a lot of effort to make this a big success, so I plead with all you town and county citizens to come and enjoy the day by attending the parade in the morning and the Horse Show in the afternoon and evening.

During the past two weeks there has been some improvement in driving conditions here in town. Let me urge everyone who operates an automobile to give the Town officers your continued support and help erase the reckless and careless driving which has endangered the lives of our beloved children and adults.

Your counsel and advice on all public matters is welcomed at all times.

Sincerely,
C. T. Moses, Jr.
Mayor, Town of Appomattox.

Program For Memorial Day

Appomattox Surrender Grounds will be the scene on Sunday, May 31, at 2:30 P. M., of a program to pay memorial tribute to Confederate dead. The Appomattox Chapter of the U. D. C., in conjunction with the Appomattox American Legion Post 104, and Appomattox American Legion Auxiliary, are sponsoring this program. The beginning of Memorial Day in the South dates back to 1861, when the Women of the South formed "The Soldiers' Aid Society,"-shortly after Federal troops invaded the South. An interesting and appropriate program has been planned, to which everyone is invited.

The speaker for the occasion will be Charles L. Kessler, Adjutant, the American Legion, Department of Virginia. A resident of Richmond, and a veteran of two polar expeditions, Kessler resigned as Deputy Director of the U. S Savings Bond Division for Virginia in order to assume his position with the Virginia American Legion. Kessler is widely known throughout Virginia, the East and Southwest, as a speaker. He has served on the speaker's committee of the Richmond Community Chest campaign for many years and has worked with similar groups promoting the interest of the Red Cross, Cancer Fund and Polio Fund.

Kessler accompanied Rear - Admiral Richard E .Byrd on his Arctic Expedition in 1926, and the Anartic Expedition of 1928-30, to Little America.

During World War II, Kessler returned to military service as a lieutenant and was placed in charge of Navy recruiting in Virginia, with headquarters in Richmond.

In 1946, he was transferred to the Ready Reserve, after being promoted to the rank of Commander. He was promoted to Captain U .S. N. R. July 1, 1956.

In event of rain, the service will be held at the court house.

FROM ARGENTINA

Miss Emma Rocha, of Argentina, Farm Youth Exchange Student, now in this county, will present the program at the regular meeting of the Appomattox Lions Club this evening. The meeting will be held at the Parkway Restaurant, at 6:45.
